The meeting was organized by The Romanian Society of Chemistry in cooperation with DAC of EUCHEMs, Romanian International Scientific Chapter of the American Chemical Society, and University Politehnica of Bucharest.

There were 150 participants, 10 from abroad (Egypt, Germany, Turkey, USA) and the rest from 19 institutes/universities in Roumania (located in Bucharest, Cluj-Napoca, Constanța, Galați, Iași, Râmnicu Vâlcea, Timișoara). During the opening ceremony were presented the slides of DAC and the next EUROANALYSIS meetings was advertised.

The scientific meeting included 11 scientific sessions with 8 plenary lectures, 4 keynote lectures, 6 short lectures, and 45 presentations.

Two prizes were awarded during the opening ceremony for outstanding contributions to analytical chemistry. The prizes were given by the Roumanian International Scientific Chapter of the American Chemical Society:

1. George Emil Baiulescu award and medal – for an established researcher with excellent contribution to the field of analytical chemistry to Professor Adam T. Woolley, USA.
2. Constantin Luca award and medal – for a young researcher under 35 years old (jury members: Hassan Y. Aboul-Enein, Adam T. Woolley, Oana Leonte) to Dr. Sevinc Kurbanoglu, University of Ankara, Turkey. The prize was sponsored by Oana and Dinu Leonte, USA – 200USD.

Prizes were awarded for posters and oral presentations to the young researchers. The next meeting will be organized in August 24-27, 2020 in Bucharest.
